Lizzie Borden—was an American woman accused and acquitted of murdering her father. We needed to find, see, and document the house that caused such a negative rift between Andrew and Abby Borden and Emma and Lizzie. It may have been carried out thus far. At the same time Holder was running his own profitable calico printing works, emulating the spectacular success of Andrew Robeson in that field.

I left school to work in a kennel and cattery aged 16 just before I met Seabury... June 13, Lizzie later denied being upstairs and testified that her father had asked her where Abby was, and she had replied that a messenger had delivered a summons to visit a sick friend.
