The defeated man leaning against the charred wall at the beginning of the poem, dwarfed by the "universe" that is falling apart, and the dying "stars" becomes, by the end of the poem, the colossus for who these tragedies of war, personified by "terror," are themselves dwarfed by his encompassing vision. See the lance-lightning, blade-glitter, banner-progress As love advances, company by company In sunlit teams his clean embattled reasons, Until the firmament, with high heavenly marvel Views in our crystal souls her blue embodiment, Unfurls a thousand flags above our heads - It is the music of Our Lady's army!

Secondthing, I think, a question to always ask oneself - who are you reading? Y

Prayers fly in the mind like larks, Thoughts hide in the height like hawks: And while the country churches tell their blessings to the distance, Her slow words move Like summer winds the wheat her innocent love: Desires glitter in her mind Like morning stars: Until her name is suddenly spoken Like a meteor falling.

Yet I wonder, who clean is the soap when it is filth? Echoes of Africa, centers a cup of tea and the experience of bringing people together, he says it becomes possible to talk with each other and be in the same room with the people we talk. The poetry in these systems of thought is concealed by the accumulation of facts and calculating processes.
